DENISON

IS THE

QUEEN CITY OF THE SOUTHWEST,

AND THE

GATEWAY TO THE GREAT STATE OF TEXAS.

IT presents the finest opportunity of any Southern city for the investment of capital in large or small sums.

Denison is situated in Northeastern Texas, near inexhaustible beds of coal and iron, surrounded by the finest fruit lands in the world, and adjoining the Indian Territory, which, in the nature of things, must in a few years be opened up to settlement. The city is regularly and beautifully laid out; railroads run from it in four different directions. The Missouri, Kansas & Texas Railway alone does an enormous business, having 54 miles of switch track in Denison, employs 500 skilled workmen and distributes $150,000.00 a month in wages. The first free public school in Texas was built here, and the school property of the city is valued at $250,000.00.

There are sixteen church societies, and most of them have church buildings of their own.

The city has extensive and costly water-works and an abundant supply of pure water as clear as crystal. It has electric lights, both arc and incandescent; a telephone plant, and nearly eleven miles of street and suburban railway, including a steam motor line running through the city and all around it.

The Denison Cotton Mill, to cost $500,000.00, will be in running order January 1st, 1891, employing over 650 operatives.

The Denison Canning Factory is complete, and will employ several hundred hands. Other important industries will be established.

The Choctaw Railroad, the Texas & Pacific, and the Denison, Bonham & New Orleans Railways will all be running into Denison before the end of the year, and, it is hoped, the Washita Valley Road. Other new railroad connections are looked for soon.

An important advantage which Denison possesses is its healthful climate. Situated about 800 feet above the sea, it is spared the frigid blasts of the north and the sultry heat of the southern lowlands.

Its population is made up of people from all sections, but it is a notable fact that its residents include far more northern people than does the population of any other city in Texas.

We are largely interested in the development of Denison, and will cheerfully answer all questions promptly.
